Washington And You

By Margaret Chase Smith

NWASHINGTON — Last fall in speeches throughout the state of Maine, I warned that Indo-China threatened to be the Korea of tomorrow. Since that time conditions there have alternated between improvement and deterioration, restrained optimism and unrestrained pessimism. At this writing the status is one of considerable gloom because the Reds are making military advances that are alarming. They have done this before. They drove across Laos just after Christmas. Then they suddenly retreated and we breathed easier. Perhaps the reports of the recent losses of the free forces there are exaggerated. Indo-China is a part of the world where means of communication are not as developed as in some parts of the world and as a result it is not as easy to get strictly factual and accurate news as rapidly as we do from other parts of the world.

But I think that there is some justification for the impression that the anti-Communist defenders are not at this point showing success in resisting the onslaught. There is no indication that the French-Viet Name are waging a positive defense but rather a holding defense. The overall impression is that by failure to take the initiative the French-Viet Name are losing ground.

Here in this country we don't want to hear of another country grabbed off by the Communists. And Indo-China is not just another country. If it falls, then its neighbors are in danger of falling to the Reds. And if this happens, then surely all of Asia will be grabbed off by Russia.

In a way Indo-China represents the very core of the most difficult problem of foreign relations and the formulation of foreign policy for our country today. At one time we were just a colony of England. We wanted our independence, so we had a war with England. We won that war and our independence.

Indo-China is a colony of France. The associated states of Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos in Indo-China want their independence. France has offered independence — but the people of Indo-China are skeptical, suspicious and dissatisfied with the terms of France's offer.

The Reds in Indo-China have seized upon this discontent and in the false guise of a war for independence are attempting to lead the people not to real independence but rather to deliver them as slaves into the hands of the would-be Communist masters.

In our desire to help the anti-Communist forces in Indo-China and in giving them air technicians to aid their defense, we find ourselves, a former colony, in the position of being caught right between the communism of the Reds we hate and the colonialism of our allies — colonialism of which we have expressed disapproval. From all that I can gather, the vast majority of the people of Indo-China hate and rebel against colonialism and reject and fear communism.

The plain blunt fact is that while we can help the anti-Communist forces in Indo-China, we cannot solve their problem. The solution can come only from France. France must more vigorously resist the attacking Reds in Indo-China and she must make an offer of independence that will convince the people of Indo-China of her sincerity. Failure to do so will lose Indo-China to the Reds.

Drama TV Radio Music

It probably seems like a long trip from the St. Lawrence waterway to this column, but there is something happening today that may affect the play time of everyone in this area. That something is the calm acceptance of such projects as the St. Lawrence river. It wasn't long ago when projects of this order were attacked with the full vigor of certain pocket-books. Public relations men were hired to prepare statistics which would convince the people that these things were a waste of public funds. Other projects were backed in subtle efforts to defeat the unwanted ones.

Today the public is unperturbed by the announcement that Washington finally seems certain to approve the St. Lawrence improvement. This project will mean deep water transportation all the way from the ocean to the west. It will mean that the New York canal system, already an antique, really will be something for the past.

It also probably will provide much electric power for this area, or neighboring areas. And this will hurt no one, including the public utilities. The more public power is sold, the more appliances are bought. The private utilities benefit by this constantly increasing demand for power.

But the St. Lawrence project means more to this area than these tangible assets which may rub off a bit on us because of our proximity to the immediate area which they will affect. It is the calm acceptance of the project that has the real meaning.

For the same reason that the St. Lawrence project is an accepted fact today, we believe the Kinzua dam would find little opposition if it were to be placed on the priority list for construction tomorrow. The day of violent opposition apparently has passed. In fact, even the day of quiet opposition by way of such things as river transportation seem to have faded away.

Councilman Paul Yagge once proposed that Warren study its flood problem and become acquainted with the facts of the Kinzua dam. Councilmen misunderstood him and some thought he was asking that they go on record as favoring the dam. If he had at that moment agreed that such was his thought a resolution putting the council on record accordingly would have enjoyed sufficient support to be successful.

However, there were some councilmen present who stated that they thought council was on record as opposing the dam and believed it inconsistent to change their stand unless the prior resolution was rescinded. Amusingly, a check back on the minutes proved that the prior resolution was not one which stated council was opposed to the dam. It was a resolution supporting river transportation.

We say this was amusing because the councilmen who had voted for the resolution were not voting for transportation so much as they were voting against the dam. They had been convinced by good publicity that you could not have both. A subtle blow at the dam would be a support of navigation.

Later this proved to be a fallacy. You can have both. Good engineers said so. You also have only one real answer to flood control in this area. Unless you want to dyke the entire river, a few major dams are needed. At least this is what Warren has been told by engineers, one of whom was a private life bread earner, not seeking to place his name on a dam, and paid by the borough to give us the answer.

And so it has evolved that today the dam would be accepted as readily as the St. Lawrence project. And its effect on the area has potentials which prod the imagination and open up many avenues of pleasure that would vitally shape our leisure hours. The dam, or a substitute, will have much to do with the play time in Warren county's future.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

Onward March The 2200

Either President Eisenhower is a very naive man or the American public is being taken for a smooth ride to the polls. There are some who say that he can not be a naive politician because he became a top ranking general in the army. They believe no man can move upward in uniform without knowing the game of politics.

If this is true and President Eisenhower is a master politician, there is a double-bladed weapon being swung by the Republican party with all hands on the handle. While the McCarthyites violate accepted basic principles of our democracy as outlined in the constitution, President Eisenhower and some of his close leaders denounce such tactics. And so everyone who looks to the Republican party as our salvation finds an answer to his hopes. Here is both black and white within one party.

However, there are times when we are forced to wonder if this is true. It seems that the President does some refuting of McCarthyism but very little whip-cracking. He could break clear of this group which some believe represents fascism financed by nouveau riche with a hunger for political power. The large proportion of clear-thinking Republicans, the independent voters who swung the majority his way, and many sound Democrats would back him.

Even many of the ultra conservative journalists in Washington are asking embarrassing questions about the 2200 "security risks" who have been discharged from government service. It is admitted that most of these were not discharged because of unpatriotic activities but because of a variety of bad habits, such as alcoholism and other undesirable characteristics.

It also is quite possible, and anticipated, that many of these were ousted to make room for patronage appointments. Knowing politics few would open their eyes at this performance, but being Americans we do believe that all discharged public employees should at least come under two categories, security risks or just plain canned.

There is quite a difference. Especially when you go looking for a job. It is time that the accused in this nation once again were allowed to face their accusers. And the least we can do for discharged employees is to allow them the right to demand reason and publicity of that reason if they so desire.

This is the kind of government practice that you find under communist, imperialist, or fascist leaders. It is not democratic! It is not republican! It is not American!

The President could clear much of the bad air in Washington by breaking free of those who think name-calling is sufficient proof of guilt and that evidence and a fair trial are dreams of old fashioned men who couldn't foresee these modern times. He could break clear by simply practicing democracy with those 2200 discharged employees. Let's break down those figures and learn the real facts!

We as citizens are entitled to know if the 2200 were communists. And if not, we are entitled to know how many of them were. The tarnish today is on the Democrat party. But by election time it may be on the Republicans if it is learned that an effort was made to brand all these people as fellow travelers when most of them really were little more than political casualties.

The truth is good to have. It makes good government and it supports good leaders. Give it to them straight and they may compensate you by voting the ticket likewise.

Do We Need A New Law?

Senator Margaret Chase Smith is one of the champions of a bill that would outlaw the communist party. There are those who oppose this, not because they like the party but because there is danger in legislation that is directed at a political group.

What puzzles us is how the communists can organize for the purpose of overthrowing the government and not be liable to arrest. If this is their announced purpose, and if they are planning this at the direction of a foreign power, and if we can prove these facts, as we have been told by so many I Wuz One guys, why can we not arrest those affiliated and charge them with treason.

The constitution says that reason includes adhering to our enemies or giving them aid and comfort. To be convicted there must be testimony of two witnesses. Are we so inefficient that a large group can organize within our land for the purpose of conspiring with a foreign power which we consider our enemy without our being able to provide the testimony of two witnesses?

The constitution was written in fear of oppression. It was written to protect our citizens from the mis-uses of power that can make it possible to disperse groups that are not subversive, and to guard against persecution. But at the same time in its protective phrasing it also describes treason.

Some times we believe we need truly open minds and well founded enforcement of existing laws rather than the creation of new ones to fit a timely situation. Those laws which apply mostly to no more than a current problem are very apt to fall far short of the intent and purposes of a far reaching document like the constitution of this nation

Mr. Hill stated: "Youngsville has annually set the goal for other communities to strive for... I'm sure, after tonight, Youngsville will be called the most generous little town on the map". Pictured with Mr. Hill is Elton Barton local financial campaign chairman.

Adult Drivers' Training Course In Youngsville

Ice covered roads with accompanying hazardous conditions have failed to dampen the spirits of those enrolled in the adult drivers' training course being conducted by the Brokenstraw Valley joint schools. Instructor Charles R. Bennett, member of the high school faculty, states that the second class of nine students are now receiving actual driving experience regardless of storms and zero weather. A waiting list of nearly 40 applicants indicates the interest prevailing among those residing in the area.

The course consists of one hour classroom instruction from a textbook and one hour on the road with the supervision of the teacher each week for eight weeks. The desk work is always scheduled on Saturday for the convenience of the majority of pupils and the actual driving is worked into the available after-school hours according to the individual requests. At the successful conclusion of the course, the driver must pass the regular drivers' test as conducted by the state police before the license is issued.

Besides teaching adults to drive, Mr. Bennett's daily schedule includes two sessions of sophomore biology, high school driving classes and coaching junior high school basketball. He is serving his first year in the local school having received his education at Edinboro State Teachers College. He resides with his wife, Dorothy, and two-year-old daughter, Ann, on North Main st. in Youngsville.

When referred to as the bravest man in town, Mr. Bennett admits that his natural bravery is augmented by brake and clutch installations where he can manipulate them from the right side of the front seat. Other than this one protective addition, however, the training car is a regular Ford with a standard gearshift. Mariner Bros. garage has agreed to furnish a new model annually.

The course is not guaranteed as a developer of proficient driving but more competent back-seat driving is almost a certainty. It seems altogether possible that those graduating from the sixteen hour training will provide the conversation stopper after every close call on the highways with "what if you have driven for twenty years - I have a diploma".

Those in charge of the instruction advise that there is still time to sign up on the waiting list if you are interested in this type of practical education.

This course is provided under a stipulation of the state educational department that makes it mandatory for a local board to provide a teacher and facilities for any type of training requested by at least fifteen citizens.

YOUNGVILLE FAIR BOARD ELECTS OFFICERS

Miss Margaret Brazee, Youngsville borough secretary, was re-elected to the office of president of the Youngsville Community fair association at the regular February meeting held Monday evening in the borough building. Also re-elected to assist her with the responsibilities are the following: Stanley Laurence, vice president; Mrs. Rose Davis, secretary; F. J. Schumacher, treasurer.

Fifteen members of the board of directors were present. They set the dates of the 1954 fair as August 25 through 28. They discussed the possibility of permanent bleachers for Island Park and urged all local civic organizations to support the project.

SS SAVE S WARREN DOLLAR DAYS FRIDAY & SATURDAY SS BUYERS' CORNER

This week thirty-eight Warren merchants combine to bring the shoppers to their doors. February Dollar Days are set for Friday and Saturday with inducements ranging from free bus service to free copies of the Warren Times Mirror.

Though we always have been under the impression that the Times Mirror and most of the merchants claimed the daily covered the town, we apparently were wrong, because the retailers committee feels it is necessary to see that copies of the special dollar day issue reach every home in Warren and will cooperate in the effort to distribute them.

For two hours on Friday and Saturday mornings the merchants also will finance all trips to town on local bus lines. So if you are thumbing your way to Warren and reach only the border, hop a bus. It is on the committee. This free lift to town lasts from nine until eleven. A. M.. that is

In this issue of the Observer we have many ads for dollar day bargains. We believe some of the merchants really make an effort to give you a break at this time and their ads are worth a perusal. We sincerely wish we had more of them, but inasmuch as we are only the paper which sells out on most of the stands in Warren and the county we apparently are not on the preferred list of the misinformed.

One of the biggest shopping problems is traffic. It is one which bothers the merchant as much as it does the shopper. This is because it bothers the shopper. An unhappy circle.

It also is a danger, as all who know readily admit. But with safety as our main objective we often sacrifice the free flow of traffic in hopes of holding down speed.

The biggest nuisance to most drivers is the red light. It stops him when he is going along smoothly by himself, holds him up when nothing is coming, and creates a line-up behind him which wasn't there when he came to a halt.

Red lights make traffic. They create lines of it that wouldn't exist in numerous cases if the motorists hadn't piled up behind the many lights which must be negotiated while getting through town.

In this day of magic eyes, electronic wonders, and other scientific slight-of-hand performances it is annoying to see the traffic light remain in such an obsolete condition. It doesn't seem that it would require much of a brain to make a light turn green in the only direction from which traffic is approaching.

It also seems a small problem to create a light that will give preference to the main line of

A few nights ago I picked up a young man on the outskirts of town because there seemed to be an unusual earnestness in the way he stood at the edge of the road with unhurried confidence that someone would give him a ride.

"Been to the show?", said I.

"No, I just finished work."

I remarked his youth and continued, "After school job?"

"Yeah, I work 4 to 9 there at the store on the corner where you picked me up."

"That's a pretty full schedule."

"Well, it pays my board. I've been earning my board since I was eight. I'm eighteen now."

I became a little puzzled. "No parents?"

"Yeah, I live with my parents."

I started a paper route when I was eight. Never got any of the money. Now I get twenty-five bucks, give five for income tax, ten for board."

"And I suppose you buy your own clothes?" He nodded. "That doesn't leave you much."

"I figure it's better than living in Russia. I get along fine."

"What do you plan to do eventually?"

"I'm not sure. I may quit school at the end of this year."

He was a laconic chap. Straight-forward enough, but he wasn't concerned with impressing me. "Want a cigarette?" I shook my head.

"Mind if I do?" I did not.

"What grade are you in?" I asked, to keep him on the subject.

"Tenth. I figure if everybody gets an education who'll be left to dig the ditches? I could have a full time job butchering any time. Maybe I'll quit this year."

"Going to get married if you quit?" I could not help thinking of a man I had been working with a little while before. He was thirty years old or so, bought anything he thought he wanted, and probably needed a financier more than he needed me.

"Can't until I'm twenty-one. My father doesn't want me to. Besides I won't have enough money until then, probably."

"Have a girl friend?"

traffic but will change colors in a few seconds if that line proves overlong and the side street needs emptying. We thus would eliminate the need for giving one lane the preference in time allowed for movement. The light would keep things moving, while safely policing the right-of-way.

As you soon will see, traffic lights can turn red in all directions at the approach of a train. We are sure there are many things they can be made to do. The end of traffic-making could be one of them.

Everyday Psychology by Dr. Norman C. Morgan

"Yeah."

"What do you do for your fun? Do you skate, bowl, or what?"

"I don't know how to bowl. Can't afford to skate much. I go to the show about once a week. Have a date with my girl once a week when I can afford it. Mostly I go home and go to bed. That's where I'm going now. Say, you can let me off at this corner."

His cigarette had burned down. He pressed it out. I glanced at his sharp, straight profile. He was serious, and I guessed a little tired. I held out my hand and reinforced my grip with a vague comment, "You're quite a fellow." He gave a slight smile. Perhaps he was pleased, but I thought he was just a little amused at my finding him unusual. "Thanks." He shut the door and walked toward home.

RADIO AND TELEVISION

By John Crosby

A DELIGHTFUL COMEDY

Television has never been very good at comedy — that is, dramatic comedy as opposed to, say, "I Love Lucy." I have watched numberless Robert Montgomery shows where the intent to amuse was clearly evident. Some of them held my interest as dramas; they just didn't make me laugh, though God knows they tried.

Then Judy Holliday came along in a featherweight operation called "The Huntress" on Goodyear Playhouse last Sunday and showed the boys how it should be done. "The Huntress" reminded me strongly of the best school of comedy of the movies in the '30s, the sort of foolery Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert engaged in "It Happened One Night."

* * *

The plot of "The Huntress" will hardly bear intelligent examination. A blonde secretary (Miss Holliday) quits her job, draws out her life savings ($5,000) and embarks on a campaign to marry a millionaire — a dramatic situation that seems to pre-occupy a good many of our writers these days. First stop on this quest is a course at a charm school and for the rest of the hour Miss Holliday's personality warred between pure charm school and her own naive or "drop dead" instincts.

From the charm school she journeys to Las Vegas, the only spot, she is assured, where $94 will bring her in the proximity of millionaires. On the bus she meets a millionaire's son — well, I told you the plot defied the normal laws of chance — who is running away from an heiress. Presently, along comes the boy's poppa, a malevolent millionaire if ever I saw one, who gives Miss Holliday a million dollars, disinherits his son and then slyly implants in her the suspicion that his son only wants to marry her for her money.

It's a preposterous story, all right, but a perfectly wonderful vehicle for Judy Holliday. This girl's voice has about a dozen different ranges, each an exact reflection of her moods which fluctuate wildly. Every word comes out as if she had thought it up that minute and the thinking process hurt. Her face is a mirror, her timing a miracle.

Playing opposite her as the boy was Tony Randall who was just exactly right for the part and there were also some good performances by Raymond Bromley as the father and by Burt Thorn as an exasperated hotel clerk. Low bows are also due to David Shaw who wrote it and Vincent Donohue who directed it for one of the most delightful hours on television I've experienced for some time.

Incidentally, Philco - Goodyear Television Playhouse — Philco and Goodyear sponsor it on alternate Sundays (NBC-TV 9 p.m. EST) — is setting the hottest pace in town. A week ago Sunday, the production was "Hide and Seek" with Mildred Dunnock and Betty Field and a week before that the play was "The Brownstone" with Kim Stanley, Janice Rule and Eli Wallach. Both plays — in writing, acting and direction — were just plain terrific, a word that is not banded around here lightly. A great deal of credit must to Fred Coe, the producer, one of the most high minded strivers after perfection in television today.

Just preceding "The Huntress" on another network (CBS-TV) was Ed Sullivan's salute to Metro Goldwyn Mayer on its thirtieth birthday and this, too, was a whale of a show. There were tantalizing excerpts from great old MGM movies — Ramon Navarro in "Ben Hur," John Gilbert and Renee Adoree in "The Big Parade," Greta Garbo and John Barrymore in "Grand Hotel," Fred Astaire and Judy Garland in "Easter Parade," Gene Kelly in "Singing in the Rain" and a lot of others.

With a bunch like that, it could hardly fail to be an enthralling show but it raised some questions in my mind. I don't think it's quite fair for Metro to claim credit for the most popular picture ever made, "Gone With The Wind." David O. Selznick made with "G. With The W." and deserves every bit of the credit for it. Metro just released it.

Another point: there was not a mention of Irving Thalberg who did more than any man to push the motion picture industry toward some semblance of maturity and who practically created Metro. It might have been interesting, too, if Dore Schary had confessed that Metro's sagacity is not unlimited. At the very moment Schary was on CBS, a big star and hot box office draw was starring on NBC's "Colgate Hour." His name: Donald O'Connor who was released by MGM as not being worth hanging on to. Another former Metro property whom the studio released as untalented is now honeymooning in Japan. Name of Marilyn Monroe.

...ABILITY PAYS OFF.... along with some 9000 post office clerks and city carriers in 309 post offices throughout the nation, 17 of Warren's postal clerks and carriers took a competitive examination last Saturday. The results of these tests will be a determining factor in future post office promotions. The men are: Herman T. Ryberg, Lloyd

H. Turner, Marshall F. Mathis, Charles W. Smith, Robert J. Pring, Philip L. Smith, Harold L. Birchard, Edward Shield, Allan L. Johnson, Edward J. Weigle, Francis H. DeLong, Joseph R. Brindis, Warren R. Rohlin, Carl L. Lindberg, Milton L. Danielson, Karl E. Petersen, and Emoree C. Schuler, Jr.

...POSTAL OFFICIALS AT THE EXAMINATION were: Harry Granquist, assistant postmaster, Stanley Korb, supervisor of finance, B. S. Knabenshue, postmaster, and M. G. Keller, president of the school board.

WASHINGTON CALLING

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — In the damp and slush and cold of a Berlin winter an American Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, is carrying a heavy load. He is confronting across the conference table Russia's Vyacheslav Molotov, whom he considers one of the ablest diplomats of this century, in a life and death struggle for Western Europe.

But while he is engaged in this crucial contest another continuing struggle is going on in the State Department. That is over whether the patronage hunters in the Republican Party are to have their way and replace career public servants with political appointees chosen from the ranks of the faithful.

Shortly before he left for Berlin, Dulles had something like a showdown with Chairman Leonard Hall of the Republican National Committee. Hall has repeatedly demanded that State open up more jobs. In this, of course, he reflects the great pressure put on him from state and country committeemen and other party workers.

Sensitive to the charge that he does not comprehend the political realities, Dulles had had his assistants prepare a careful tabulation of past and present changes in State Department personnel. This showed that the Eisenhower Administration has put new faces in a larger proportion of the top jobs than any Administration that has come into power since 1912.

Even when the greatly increased size of the department is taken into account, the tabulation shows that proportionately more changes have been made than were made when the Harding Administration took office in 1920 or the Roosevelt Administration in 1933. What veterans in the department fear is that a the years to serve a bi-partisan foreign policy will be so decimated in the current struggle that the essential instrumentality for carrying out American foreign policy will be permanently damaged.

This was the fear expressed by five former career ambassadors, all of them men of outstanding service and most of them inclined to be Republican in their political leanings, in a letter of warning sent to the New York Times. For four years extremists have hammered the charge of disloyalty and treason against the State Department. A succession of loyalty investigations have publicly involved responsible career officers. As one consequence it is believed that the frankness and objectivity of the reporting of foreign service officers around the world has been seriously impaired.

The Republican drive for patronage overlooks one important fact. That is that the economy drive of the Eisenhower Administration has greatly reduced the total number of jobs available. The civil service commission reports a payroll reduction of 192,700 during last year.

The number of jobs in the Department of State has been reduced by 20 percent. Staffs in some of the larger embassies have been drastically cut down. Thus the staff of the embassy in London has been reduced 46 percent.

These economies are cutting deeply into services that top policy-makers consider vital. Recently the Bureau of the Budget was about to lop off an additional 100 foreign service officers. A last-minute plea put up to Director of the Budget Joseph M. Dodge resulted not only in the rescinding of this order but in re-instating the names of 200 foreign service officers eligible for assignment but held up for economy reasons.

The patronage hunters apparently take no account of what the economy drive has done. They seem to think it is possible to fire people and at the same time to find good jobs for deserving Republicans. Dulles told Chairman Hall that this simply was not possible without doing grave damage to the department.

One aspect of the dispute is not so much political as ideological. The department's top security officer, W. Scott McLeod, exercises an authority greater than his title would indicate. He represents the viewpoint of Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, for whom he formerly worked, and other Republicans bent on reversing the foreign policy of recent years. Bridges and those actively supporting nationalist China in the past would like to see the emphasis switched from Europe to Asia with an aggressive policy aimed at destroying the Communist regime on the China mainland.

Career officers responsible for helping to implement official policy since 1945 are looked at askance by McLeod and his security staff. They were, of course, only doing their duty. Many things are wrong with the civil service system. The means that under the seniority rule a man unequipped for a job can replace a trained specialist, is pernicious. But the cure is not to ravage the system itself.

WARREN GRAPPLERS NOTCH NINTH WIN

Erie East high school's wrestling team made an easy victim for the Warren hi grapplers last Thursday at Beaty gym as the Barrmen chalked up their ninth victory of the season with a stunning 26-12 win over Erie.

Glen Cook and Frank Smith remained undefeated for the Dragons as both boys pinned their men.

The only other pin in the contest was by Warren's Chuck Eaton. Don Brian, Lou Cummings, Den Brown, LaVern Hanson, and Don Cummings all decisioned their opponents, while Bob and Wayne Miller gave the locals four points on ties.

Tonight the Blue and White will go against the Brockway hi wrestlers at Beaty gym, with the first match getting under way at 7:15. On Saturday, February 20, the Southern Section meet will be held at Beaty gym, at one p. m.

DRAGON CAGERS FALL TO TITUSVILLE, 55-48

Titusville high school's basketball five won its second game over the Warren high school Dragons this year as the Rockets handed the locals a 55-48 defeat at Beaty gym Friday night. Earlier in the season the Queen City boys also turned back the Dragons, 58-41, in a scrap at Titusville. Titusville led all the way in the contest, taking a 15-14 lead at the end of the first period, and had a 31-26 lead at the half-way mark.

The Rockets were paced by Cole and Johnson who netted 15 and 13 respectively. Bruce Duell and Gerry Gordon led the Blue and White in scoring with 15 apiece. The Massamen, who were idle on Tuesday night, will make the long trip to Meadville Friday night for a Section Tow battle with the Bulldogs.

AREA SCORES

Friday, February 12, the Meadville Bulldogs clinched a tie for the Section Two Crown as they drubbed Corry, 68-38. Oil City topped Franklin, 51-33. Sheffield lost to Kane, 77-52. Northern Area dropped a contest to East Forest, 71-33. Ridgway edged Johnsonburg, 49-41. Erie East beat Erie Tech, 66-53. Strong Vincent nipped Academy, 61-58. Wilcox swamped Emporium, 86-43. Union City topped North East 64-56.

On Tuesday night the Bradford Owls beat Wellsville, 69-48. Meadville rolled over Erie Tech, 79-47. Oil City tilted Cranberry, 79-17. Clearfield won over DuBois, 65-56. Johnsonburg romped over St. Marys, 58-45. Sharpsville stopped Grove City, 87-52. Erie Prep ripped Jamestown, 61-34. Butler edged Erie East, 46-45. Millcreek belted Strong Vincent, 63-48. New Castle slapped Sharon, 57-49. Farrell spanked Beaver Falls, 66-49.

DUKES AND ROCKETS WIN IN Y LEAGUE

The leading Warren Rockets scored a 47-45 win over the Youngsville Wiggers, and the second place Dukes nipped the American Legion five, 61-59, in Y league scraps at the Y last Thursday night. Also on the Y floor Monday night the Dukes swamped Youngsville, 63-39, and the Legion edged the Merchants, 65-64. Tonight the Dukes will meet the Rockets in an important battle at 7:00, and at 8:00 it will be the Merchants going against Youngsville.

Gail Schaeffer led the Warren high school seconds to a 56-53 win over the Titusville JayVees Friday night at Beaty gym as the junior forward netted 16 points. Schaeffer had to leave the contest early in the third stanza due to an injury. Jeff Homan, a sophomore, also had 14 markers for the Blue and White. Top man for Titusville was Voisen with 14.

East Street and South Street won battles in the Gra-Y league Saturday afternoon, the East Streeters nipping McClintock, 23-18, and the South Street boys winning over Lacy, 18-9. David Pring took high scoring honors of the day with 11 points for East while Kane and Madigan each tallied six for McClintock. Praino was top man for South with six and Shriver hit for eight to lead the Glade boys.

The Y Varsity five came from behind in the last half to nose out the Johnstown YMCA team, 88-81, at Johnstown Saturday night. Paced by Ron Isackson's 27 points and Hud Berdine's 20 counters, the locals made it four in a row. Howard was high for the Johnstown Y with 21 markers.

George Hesch local basketball ace and now captain of the Gannon College Knights, may be lost to the team for the remainder of the season because of burns which he suffered at home while attempting to cure a cold with steam. He spilled boiling hot water on his right arm and leg.

The Beaty Jr. high school yearlings lost their second game of the season Friday afternoon at Beaty court to the Bradford Freshmen, 35-31. It was the second time this year that Beaty has lost to Bradford. Ed Rickerson was high score for Beaty with 14 points while Blessing was tops for Bradford with 12 markers.

Beaty got back on the win wagon Tuesday afternoon as the yearlings won a thriller from the Meadville freshmen, 36-34, in a well-played game at Meadville. Rickerson and Martin led Beaty with 11 points apiece. Top man for Meadville was Jenkins with 20 markers.

Beatys record now stands at 11 wins and two defeats. Both defeats came from the Bradford freshmen. Local fans will get a chance to see the Yearlings Friday afternoon at Beaty gym, when they will meet the Kane freshmen.

WITH THE BOWLERS

The annual Warren County bowling singles championship will be settled at the Penn alleys, Sunday evening, when at least twenty keggers, and perhaps twenty-four, will start firing at 4:30. It will be a real test across the four lanes, each bowler churning out eight games.

The defending champion is Myer Pappalardo and the way Myer has been going this season he won't be easy to dethrone. However, Nummy Wooster, a former champion, also is spanking the maples this year and should be a contender. And there are other toughies, such as Harry Wooster, Dr. Jim Giunta, Paul Coppola, Mark Gelotte, Harold Bjers, and Dave Fink. Pete Juliano, who is tossing a hot ball this season, does not participate because he is the host.

However, there will be only one prize for the best scratch score. That will settle the championship. All other prizes will be in the handicap field, and this has attracted many who otherwise wouldn't have a chance. Defending the handicap crown will be Louie Chimenti.

A good entry for the annual tournament of the Warren Bowling Association is shaping up. About forty teams should take part in this event, which starts a week from Saturday. Deadline for entries is Saturday.

This is a handicap affair with team competition being held at the Penn alleys and the doubles and singles going to the Arcade. These alleys divide the tournament for two years. Next season it goes to the Bowladrome.

Last year's winners included Walter Confer who had 715 in the singles; Virg Albaugh and Cal Lawson, with 1291 in the doubles; Harry Wooster's 1938 in the all-events, and the Building Blocks team with 2992 in the five man.
